Becoming a Mediator 2002-03-07 one of the most important and disputed questions within the fields of international relations and conflict studies concerns the issue of mediator impartiality should mediators be biased supportive of one but not both of the main disputants or should mediators always be impartial this paper contributes to this debate by studying the effectiveness of mediation with regard to the role of mediator bias in a game theoretic model of cheap talk this study shows that the institutional design of a mediation process is affected by two factors the relative degree of conflict and the incentives to misrepresent private information we find that a necessary but not always sufficient condition for the success of any mediation process is a sufficiently low likelihood of a misrepresentation problem if in addition the relative degree of conflict is low enough mediation is effective and the institutional design of a mediation process is the same regardless of the bias otherwise the design will be quite different depending on the direction of the bias

Conflict Diagnosis and Alternative Dispute Resolution 2004 the sage handbook of conflict resolution demonstrates the range of themes that constitute modern conflict resolution it brings out its key issues methods and dilemmas through original contributions by leading scholars in a dynamic and expanding field of inquiry this handbook is exactly what it sets out to be an indispensable tool for teaching research and practice in conflict resolution peter wallensteen professor of peace and conflict research uppsala university and university of notre dame bercovitch kremenjuk and zartman are among the most important figures in the conflict resolution field they have pieced together with the help of more than 35 colleagues from numerous countries a state of the art review of the sources of international conflict available methods of conflict management and the most difficult challenges facing the individuals and organizations trying to guide us through these conflict ridden times the collection is brimming with penetrating insights trenchant analyses compelling cases and disciplined speculation they help us understand both the promise of as well as the obstacles to theory building in the new field of conflict resolution lawrence susskind professor and director of the mit harvard public disputes program the last three sentences of this persuasive book we conclude this volume more than ever convinced that conflict resolution is not just possible or desirable in the current international environment it is absolutely necessary resolving conflicts and making peace is no longer an option it is an intellectual and practical skill that we must all possess if you are part of that we intellectually or professionally you will find this book a superb companion thomas c schelling professor emeritus harvard university and university of maryland conflict resolution is one of the fastest growing academic fields in the world today although it is a relatively young discipline having emerged as a specialized field in the 1950 s it has rapidly grown into a self contained vibrant interdisciplinary field the sage handbook of conflict resolution brings together all the conceptual methodological and substantive elements of conflict resolution into one volume of over 35 specially commissioned chapters the handbook is designed to reflect where the field is today by drawing on the contributions of experts from different fields presenting in a systematic way the most recent research and practice jacob bercovitch is professor of international relations and fellow of the royal society at the university of canterbury in christchurch new zealand victor kremenjuk is deputy director of the institute for usa and canada studies russian academy of sciences moscow he is also a research associate at iiasa i william zartman is jacob blaustein professor of conflict resolution and international organization at the nitze school of advanced international studies of johns hopkins university

Biased Mediators in Conflict Resolution 2022 the work draws on wide ranging area analysis to develop inductively new concepts and approaches for further use in explanation and application divided into two parts it begins with analysis of revolution and socio political unrest followed by models of ethnic conflict and elite circulation in developing societies it presents the cultural dialectic present in islam it then lays out the patterns of mediation and negotiation in managing and resolving conflict culminating with an analysis of intractables part two on governance lays out the nature of world order cooperation and conciliation it then turns to the challenges of identity ideology and interest with some specific attention to the nature of borders and borderlands and focuses on governance as conflict management and as negotiation this book encompasses a new analysis of a neglected part of international relation the prevention and management of conflict the book confronts sources and patterns of contentious politics with systems and methods of governance the book lays out a comprehensive conceptualization of the process of conflict management and negotiation including questions of when as well as how

Alternative Dispute Resolution 1999 this publication is the product of the 25th annual africa and diaspora conference in 2016 organized by the center for african peace and conflict resolution at california state university sacramento on the theme of peace and conflict resolution in africa 25 years later lessons best practices and opportunities it brings together reflections on both historical and contemporary or recurring conflicts in africa especially on issues of ethno religious conflicts corruption land and leadership the chapters include case studies and some theoretical perspectives on the persistent search for the right size and scope of visioning and programming on peace and conflict resolution in africa understandably this collection of ideas thoughts and proposals will resonate with the field of peace and conflict studies arguably africa is rising in the 21st century with declining violent conflicts and an increase in stable democracies and economies however there are still the significant challenges of extremism climate change poor governance ineffective leadership widening wealth gaps and weak institutions of moderation the essays collected here also document areas of progress in legitimizing democracy and conceptualizing social justice and suggest the need for building the next generation of peace leaders in africa
