halperin traces the persistence of traditional class structures during the development of industrial capitalism in europe and the way in which these structures shaped states and state behavior and generated conflict. she documents european conflicts between 1789 and 1914 including small and medium scale conflicts often ignored by researchers and links these conflicts to structures characteristic of industrial capitalist development in europe before 1945. this book revisits the historical terrain of karl polanyi's 'the great transformation' (1944) however it argues that polanyi's analysis is in important ways inaccurate and misleading. ultimately the book shows how and why the conflicts both culminated in the world wars and brought about a great transformation in europe. its account of this period challenges not only polanyi's analysis but a variety of influential perspectives on nationalism, development, conflict, international systems change and globalization.

published in 1963 the three essays bound together in this book are based upon lectures given by the author as a university lecturer in modern history at oxford the lectures were not intended as a substitute for the excellent textbooks of modern european history published in recent years the choice of subject and more of treatment were determined by the questions of students and others attempting to find in this history of modern europe something more than a chronicle of events a list of dates and names a catalogue of political and constitutional changes

An Improbable War? 2007

the region between the baltic and the black sea was marked by a set of crises and conflicts in the 1920s and 1930s demonstrating the diplomatic military economic or cultural engagement of france germany russia britain italy and japan in this highly volatile region and critically damaging the fragile post versailles political arrangement the editors in naming this region as middle europe seek to revive the symbolic geography of the time and accentuate its position situated between big powers and two world wars the ten case studies in this book combine traditional diplomatic history with a broader emphasis on the geopolitical aspects of big power rivalry to understand the interwar period the essays claim that the european big powers played a key role in regional affairs by keeping the local conflicts and national movements under control and by exploiting the region's natural resources and military dependencies while at the same time strengthening their prestige through cultural penetration and the cultivation of client networks the authors however want to avoid the simplistic view that the big powers fully dominated the lesser players on the european stage the relationship was indeed hierarchical but the essays also reveal how the small states manipulated big power disagreements highlighting the limits of the latter's leverage throughout the 1920s and the 1930s

The Power of War 2019-05-23

this book presents a comprehensive reassessment of Europe in the cold war period 1945-91. Contrary to popular belief, it shows that relations between East and West were based not only on confrontation and mutual distrust but also on collaboration. The authors reveal that despite opposing ideologies, there was in fact considerable interaction and exchange between different Eastern and Western actors, such as states, enterprises, associations, organisations and individuals, irrespective of the Iron Curtain. This book challenges both the traditional understanding of the East-West juxtaposition and the relevancy of the Iron Curtain covering the full period, and taking into account a range of spheres including trade, scientific, technical, co-operation and cultural and social exchanges. It reveals how smaller countries and smaller actors in Europe were able to forge and implement their agendas within their own blocs. The book suggests that given these lower-level actors engaged in mutually beneficial cooperation, often running counter to the ambitions of the bloc leaders, the rules of cold war interaction were not in fact exclusively dictated by the superpowers.

a concise people's history of Europe spanning from the first world war to today

Wars and Betweenness 2010-11-19

Given the destruction and suffering caused by more than four years of industrialised warfare and economic hardship, scholars have tended to focus on the nationalism and hatred in the belligerent countries, holding that it led to a fundamental rupture of any sense of European commonality and unity. It is the central aim of this volume to correct this view and to highlight that many observers saw the conflict as a European civil war and to discuss what this meant for discourses about Europe. Bringing together a remarkable range of compelling and highly original topics, this collection explores notions, images and ideas of Europe in the midst of catastrophe.

exploring the visions of the end of the cold war that have been put forth since its inception until its actual ending this volume brings to the fore the reflections programmes and strategies that were intended to call into question the bipolar system and replace it with alternative approaches or concepts these visions were associated not only with prominent individuals organized groups and civil societies but were also connected to specific historical processes or events they ranged from actual thoroughly conceived programmes to more blurred utopian aspirations or simply the belief that the cold war had already in effect come to an end such visions reveal much about the contexts in which they were developed and shed light on crucial moments and phases of the cold war
